San Bernardino, Calif., February 24, 2010- On March 6, 2010, the National Orange Show will partner with an official local division of the Miss America Organization to select Miss National Orange Show and Miss Greater Inland Empire for the 2010 year.

Fifteen contestants from the ages of 17-24 will compete for two scholarships and two crowns based on overall performance in talent, swimwear, evening gown, and interview competitions.

The chosen Orange Show queen will reign over the National Orange Show Festival later this year in May, as well as participate in various events with the National Orange Show Events Center throughout the year. Both queens also qualify to compete for Miss California with the Miss America Organization.

The 2010 competition will mark the third year the pageant has taken place after over two decades inactivity. The National Orange show pageant was a very prestigious competition in the Inland Empire in the 70s and 80s.

“With the bicentennial celebration of San Bernardino taking place this year, we are excited to select a queen to hold a title with so much history,” commented Derrick Vasquez, Director of Catering and Special Events at the National Orange Show Events Center and one of the community judges for the event. “As we look to San Bernardino’s future, it an honor to provide scholarships that will invest in the future of these outstanding local young women.”

About the National Orange Show Events Center
